

Gu Liangqi

Partner

Gu Liangqi is a founding partner of WALSON's Laos and Myanmar offices. He oversees management and strategy across all practice groups and countries covered by WALSON's Southeast Asia Operations Centre. In the Laos office, he is responsible for project coordination, resource allocation, quality control and the approval of key legal opinions, and works on cross-border investment and project transactions.

With 25 years of experience as a lawyer, Gu Liangqi has established and led WALSON's legal practice in Southeast Asia. In recognition of his professional expertise and leadership, he became a member of the Shanghai Bar Association's Belt and Road Committee in 2025 and was admitted to the Shanghai Municipal Bureau of Justice's Dingxin talent pool in 2026.

He contributed to the first edition of the Practical Guide to Foreign Investment Law in Laos, published by Law Press China in 2022, and to the second edition, which is under revision.
